'Don't Hide Behind Petticoats'

Washington, May 22.—"Do not hide behind petticoats or children to avoid service in the new national army," is the injunction of Provost Marshal Gen-eral Crowder in an official guide he has issued to show how questions put to those who register on June 5 should be

The guide explains that there is no School here, has announced the complete programme for the Kentucky conservation Congress, which will be held woman or child, but points out that unless the person you have in mind is solely dependent on you" exemption would not be granted.

The registrar will drop permanently from the list those whose physical defects, such as the absence of a leg or an arm, makes unfitness for service obvious, but all other claims for exemption will be passed upon by the local boards. The applicant will be required to state specifically the character of the work he is performing in order that the board may judge if it such as to warrant the Government in

"If you are a felon or otherwise morally deficient and desire to claim ex-emption on that ground, state your ground briefly," says the guide.

The difference between a "natural-born" citizen and a naturalized citizen is explained carefully, and it is pointed out that even alien enemies within the age limit will be required to register, although they will not be drafted.

We had taken one of their most important strongholds on which the Germans had spent 2 1-2 years. Well, the snow soon passed over and we had consolidated. I had my gun emplacement in good shape and we were ready for any counter that "Fritz" desired to stage. After getting the wound dressed as well as ssible, my right arm was useless, but I managed to get the other one by firing from my left shoulder, then the officer told me jokingly I could be dismissed. He was a good boy They are all good fellows over there It would be an impossibility to deship among our troops both men and Officers. I then wanted to come back alone, but my captain would not hear to that and went himself to get a man to come over with me, but while was gone another man was hit in the leg, which tore a great piece of the muscle off, also broke the small bone. We had bandaged him up the best we could, and he wanted to get out, so we started, the two of us, he with two good arms, I with two good legs. He was a stranger to me but wore the same uniform. The Girl Next Door

A Sketch of Juvenile Love

By F. A. MITCHEL

 Spring is the season of flowers and love, as has been remarked before, it seems, to the present writer. He does not claim originality for the remark. But it is as true now as it was when first made, some centuries ago, and all English and American poets from Chaucer to the present poet laureate have enlarged on the theme.

Why not use it, therefore, to introduce a little tale, or sketch, rather, of a very young man and a very young maid and flowers and flour?

Billy Atherton was nearing sixteenthat is, he was at an age when two things monopolized the limited space there was in his undeveloped brain, the first being his clothes, the second a girl. It may seem absurd to put the clothes before the girl, but such is the proper relation. There are a great many girls, but only one wardrobe, for young man, and he requires that wardrobe to be exactly in vogue.

The first sign Billy showed of approaching manhood was when he was fourteen. Then he displayed marked concern about his neckwear. Later a new complication developed; then the period for long trousers came on The color of his neckwear must match the color of his socks. Nothing would induce him to wear socks that were not clocked. His favorite shade for his scarf and socks was a brilliant yellow, and woe betide the tailor who produced a pair of trousers for him that were not short enough to display seven-eighths of his hosiery!

When Billy was invited to his first formal dance he was confronted with the most important question thus far of his life. Should be wear a swallow tail or a tuxedo? If a tuxedo, should he wear a white or black vest, a white or black tie? In Billy's time boys of his age were supposed to pass upward and onward to full dress through a tuxedo. So, notwithstanding that he was invited to a formal dance, he must wear a tuxedo.

Consultation with half a dozen other boys of his age soon cleared the way through the vest and tie problems. They were to be both black. But Billy struck a snag on the collar. There was unfortunately a division of opinion. Some of the boys ruled for a standing. some for a turndown collar. During the afternoon before the dance Billy was in a fever of suspense whether it should be standing or turndown. Finally the matter was settled by a telephone message from his haberdasher, who, after consulting a periodical giving such fashions, assured Billy that if he wore anything except a turndown

Since Billy was to enter upon his first love affair during the evening of this dance one would suppose that the Betty Hinsdale, aged fourteen and ten months, was as much concerned about her party get up as was Billy about his apparel. A dress had been especially prepared for the occasion. But if her costume were to be as minutely described as Billy's has been it would require a woman to do the job. This would involve two persons to write the story. Hence I can only say that when Betty was paraded before her father in her party dress he immediately ordered it lengthened at both ends. This is all the information 1 can give on the subject.

The apparel of these two young persons being the most important part of this story has necessitated its being introduced in the beginning. It is now necessary to mention a certain spring day when Billy had put on his ball suit and was in his back yard sunning himself, occasionally throwing a ball against the brick wall of his

Billy was standing within a few feet of the house examining a tear in the ball he had been tossing when he was surprised at a fine powder settling all over him. He brushed it off, but more settled in its place. He looked up to see whence it came. All he saw was that it had emanated from a window in the house next door.

Billy was puzzled. Nevertheless he suspected that some one was showerhim. Bending his head over his ball for awhile, he raised his eyes suddenly and saw the laughing face of s girl at a window. It was drawn in with astonishing rapidity. Billy waited and watched for some time, but there was no reappearance of either the girl or the flour that had whitened

Be it remembered that this was springtime. One morning when Billy was getting himself late for breakfast by a painful indecision as to which cravat out of more than twenty he should wear he cast his eyes aside from the mirror before him-it was very close to a window-and saw a she was the maid who had floured him, and he wished for something with which to return the compliment. In the window was a box of plants. and the plants were budding. began to throw the bads at the girl. who was pretty.

A man would have been surprised at seeing a flower drop near him and BRITISH EXPERT would have looked to see where it came from. Not so this young lady. She was conscious of the fact that a young man lived next door. She remembered to have dropped flour on his shoulders and was on the lookout for a response. In fact, she had seen Billy at his window amid a rainbow of cravats. Given a girl in a back yard, a young man at a window, and it is to be supposed that the girl will expect something Billy tossed sprigs and flowers which fell to the girl's right, to her left, before her, behind her, but she paid no attention to them. Then he went to the bathroom, filled a tumbler with water and, returning to his win dow, sent the contents in a spray on the flower planter. There was just enough of a sprinkling to cause her to fear a douche. She arose from her work and marched into the house. On her way she cast a glance up at Billy and made a "face" at him. Billy in return threw her a kiss from the tips of his fingers.

This time Billy saw enough of the girl to be sure that she was pretty. What else she was he did not know and did not care to know. He had attracted her attention, though he had been obliged to sprinkle her to do so. She had brought the sprinkling on herself by giving him a stage snowstorm, and as for the face she had made at him he did not mind that a

The next day when Billy was going up the steps, getting out his latchkey, who should come out of the front door of the next house but the girl. She passed him with her nose in the air, but she had scarcely reached the sidewalk when Billy heard a giggle. He turned and tried to get up his courage been introduced to her, and should she scorn him be would never recover from the blow. She had floured him and he had flowered her, but this did not constitute an introduction. He would no more dare speak to her without the formal introduction required in social life than he would return to his knickerbockers.

Such was the condition between these two next door neighbors when Billy was invited to his first formal dance. He began to array himself at 6 o'clock for a function that was supposed to begin at half past 8. Much time was required. He put three sets of studs in his shirt before he was satisfied with a set of tiny mosaics. He had inserted gold links in his cuffs, and this necessitated a further change, for had he worn mosaic studs with gold sleeve buttons he would expect to be ordered out of the house by the host. The tying of his neckwear was another delay requiring some twenty-five minutes. He succeeded in placing it above the collar button, but was in terror lest it slip down. He was informed by his mother, who stood by him nobly in this critical period of his life, that he would surely be late, and at last he put the finishing touches to his makeup and, going downstairs and out, entered a limousine that had been summoned to transport him to the scene of hoped for conquests. As he was driving away a car stopped next door. He wondered if the girl who lived there was going anywhere.

Billy on reaching his destination spent half an hour in the dressing room. Whether it was for further arrangement of his apparel or a stage fright at appearing at his first function there is no record. Nevertheless he held on to the banister on his way the whole country through insufficiendown. He made his bow to the hostess and was at once taken off by a member of the family to be presented to some of the young ladies he did not know.

Those invited were all supposed to be between fifteen and seventeen, though some of the girls had barely turned fourteen. Billy was introduced to several girls in succession and was landed for a similar purpose before another when he stood stock still. She was the girl next door.

"Miss Betty Hinsdale, this is Mr. Atherton!"

Why all the retiring qualities are attributed to the softer sex it is difficult to explain. Billy, as he expressed it afterward, was taken "flat aback." Miss Hinsdale was as cool as a cucumber. Billy stammered something like "pleasure of a dance," whereupon she threw back her head with all the air of a society belle, at the same time thrusting out a dance card with not a vacancy on it. But Billy soon caught up with her. He erased several names and boldly wrote his own name in their place.

Minute accounts of love affairs may be pleasingly realistic, but they require much space. But it doesn't require much time for a boy of sixteen to fall in love. Billy did the falling like a house painter from a scaffoldvery suddenly. But he was a dead man, so far as his heart was concerned, long before the evening was over He had not only been made acquainted with the girl next door, but had fallen madly in love with her.

The flouring, the flowering and the sprinkling, and all that, were over, and another phase of the affair was

But that phase has been so often portrayed that we will leave these youngsters at the end of the beginning of their affair by merely stating that the love spats were so numerous one would suppose that they were bitter enemies instead of lovers. Billy was at one moment in the clouds, the next in the slough of despair. This up and down condition lasted till he went to college, when he succeeded in getting admit ted to the university baseball team. and from this moment he forgot the girl next door. But it is only fair to her to say that before she married the had been engaged six times.

LAUDS RAILROADS OF UNITED STATES

Tells Congress Committee That They Lead World.

NO GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

It Would Mean Political Control and Loss of Efficiency-Declares That Crisis Confronts Country on Account of Transportation Situation-Lewest Freight Rates to Be Found In United

Washington, May 14.-That the Un't ed States is face to face with a serious crisis in its commercial affairs, due to the conditions by which its transportation system is confronted, was the opinion expressed by W. M. Acworth, England's leading authority on railways. before the Newlands joint committee on interstate commerce at a special session held here to enable the committee to hear his views before his departure for London this week. Two steps are necessary, according to Mr Acworth, to avert this crisis and to solve the threatening railroad problem confronting the country.

The first is to allow the railroads to charge freight-rates sufficient to meet the great advance in operating ex to follow and join her, but he had not penses which is taking place and to enable them to command the credit necessary to provide the extensions and improvements needed to meet the growing demands of business. The sec ond is to do away with the multiple and conflicting systems of regulation that now namper railway operation and to provide one centralized regulatory agency with such local subdivisions as may be necessary.

Higher Rates a Public Necessity.

Mr. Acworth's views on the transportation situation in the United States were expressed in answer to questions by members of the committee, who asked him to apply his knowledge of railway conditions throughout the world and of the experience of other countries with government ownership to the present problem before the United States.

"The fundamentaal factor in the situation is very simple," said Mr. Acworth. "It lies in the fact that you cannot get three-quarters of a cent's worth of work done for less than threequarters of a cent, no matter whether the agency performing it is a government or private enterprise. Freight rates must advance when the cost of performing the service advances as it is doing at present, just as the price bread or meat or any other commodity increases with increased cost of production."

In answer to a question Mr. Acworth said that he thought American freight rates had been at much too low a level for several years past, that they had reached this low point during the period of cutthroat competition among the roads and had since been held there by regulating bodies. Unless relief were afforded to the carriers very promptly he said, the result would be a tremendous loss to the people of cy of transportation facilities. Weakness of Government Ownership.

On the subject of government ownership of railways Mr. Acworth said:

"It is impossible to obtain satisfactory results on government railways in a democratic state unless the management is cut loose from direct political control. Neither Australia nor any other country with a democratic constitution-perhaps an exception ought to be made of Switzerland-has succeeded in maintaining a permanent severance. In France, in Belgium, in Italy, parliamentary interference never has been abandoned for a moment. The facts show that government interference has meant running the railways not for the benefit of the people at large, but to satisfy local and sectional and even personal interests.

Prussia, Mr. Acworth said, was the best example of an efficient government railway system, and he pointed out that military considerations were treated as of paramount importance in the Prussian railway system. While American freight rates had been re duced nearly 40 per cent in thirty vears, rates in Prussia were nearly as high as at the beginning of the period. While the charge for moving a ton of freight one mile in the United States was a trifle over three-quarters of a cent, the rate in Prussia was 1.41

As illustrating the difference in rates between government and private roads Mr. Acworth compared the railways of New South Wales, Australia, with those of Texas. While the amount of traffic to each mile of line was about the same in both cases, he pointed out, the Texas rallways performed for the public four times as much service as the government owned roads of New South Wales. The charge in Texas for hauling a ton of freight one mile was less than I cent, while in the Australian state it was well over 2 cents.

"American railways lead the world," said Mr. Acworth "Nowadays when men in any other part of the world men in any other part of the world want to know how to run a railway they come to the United States and study your railways here. The Amer brought here to his old home place for lean railways are author. ican railways are entirely the result of private enterprise, and I think they go a long way toward proving the case against government ownership.'

Please observe the following consensus of opinion-by those "who saw,"

other than the Savior himself, holds the place of importance and interest to the christian heart and mind which is held by St. Paul. The life and work of this great Apostle is deserving the care ful study of all intelligent people. Some of the most stirring scenes in his life are portrayed interestingly and vividly in Rev. Jemison's religious drama en titled, "The Appeal to Cæsar." As pre-sented with a large cast of characters and costumes appropriate to the people of that age "The Appeal to Cæsar" is not only entertaining, but also instruct. ive. Any christian, no matter how fa miliar with the story of St. Paul, will find that this drama will impress upon his mind incidents which he had failed to remember in the life of the great Apostle to the Gentiles. Old and young all who have opportunity to do so,ought to see this drama."-Prof. Edward M.

Have been built and actually delivered to retail buyers since August 1, 1916. The se figures—320,817—represent the actual number of cars manufactured by us since August 1st, 1916, and delivered by our agents to retail buyers. This unusual fall and winter demand for FORD cars makes it necessary. essary for us to confine the distribution of cars only to those agents who have orders for immediate delivery to retail customers, rather than to permit any agent to stock cars in anticipation of later spring sales.

We are issuing this notice to intending buyers that they may protect themselves against delay or disappointment in securing FORD cars. If, therefore, you are planning to purchase a FORD car, we advise you to place your order and take delivery now.

IMMEDIATE ORDERS WILL HAVE PROMPT ATTENTION.

Delay in buying at this time may cause you to wait severa!

Enter your order to-day for immediate delivery with our authorized FORD agent listed below and don't be disappointed later on.

We firmly believe in first love, given when the heart is young and tender, unstained by too close contact with the world and its bewitching, be-guilding attractions. Such love, honestto a mother's love—the safeguard of young men and maidens This once secured, the world may spread out all her devices ever so skilfully and she will not break the bond. So, because the first young love is so sweet, so strong, and when faithfully nurtured, so enduring, we say "let it not go" even if it can be held only by a long engagement.

For The Boys.

You who are men in years, and you, just entering manhood, stop-and consider life as it is. Remember, "action is the essence of character," good or bad. This character building is a daily thing, so consider your ways and weigh your actions, and build wisely.

What are your aims? Are you striving to develop yourself, mentally and morally, so as to have an influence in your community Our boys will be the future men of our country, our lawmakers, and they should be men who honor the law; they should be men of principle, who cannot be corrupted by bribes; who have the moral courage to do their duty. When a community lacks such men evil and cor-ruption predominate. How much the well-being of a community depends up-on the honest, upright men in it.

Many temptations beset the young and they come in contact with evil in and they come in contact with evil influences in every vocation in life. Yet there is within yourselves, boys, a counteracting force (if used) that will on Lick creek, four miles from Louisa, and is the son of former Sheriff Andy deceased.) with which you will surely come in contact. Bring your reasoning powers to bear. Argue with yourselves the certain moral degredation if you continue in a wrong course. Bring your will power to bear and keep under the low appetites and the little mean things that corrupt any who give way to them. Have a high standard, choose a right open path in life. Nothing to hide, noth ing to be ashamed of.

Listen to the counsel of your parents. Seek the home nest and its pure influences. Shun place of vice and evil in every form. Look carefully over the record of the past. Are you proud of it, Are you willing it should be Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher penned the following wise words to the newly effort be to better your condition.

OBITUARY.

The sudden death of our dear father, Mansfield Hays, which was the result of heart disease, and occurred at River-view hospital, Louisa, Ky., May 9, 1917. has cast a shadow of sadness over our home. We feel that we have lost one of our best and dearest friends, yet while we feel so sad in our hearts and are so deeply grieved over the loss of this dear one, there is no doubt in our minds that his soul is resting in the paradise of God's eternal love, and, oh! what a glorious thought it is to know that we who live for Jesus will be witi our loved one some day, never to part again. He was a constant reader of the Bible and he tried so hard to follow its teachings; in his latter life his mind seemed to be mostly of heaven and spiritual things. Just a short time before his physical weakness became so serious, he said that he realized that his time on earth was short and he said I am prepared and ready to go and when I leave here my company will be mostly little children Oh! how often I have heard him say he was ready to go and I do believe that he met his God in peace and that to-day he is in that blessed land where the sunlight never dies, singing prasses to God with his dear little ones, Mollie and Charlie, who left this land of sorrow many years ago. He was 73 years, 2 months and 12 days old. Oh! how we miss his dear sweet smiles and kind voice. His body was laid to rest in the family grave-yard Friday morning, May 11th. MR. AND MRS. J. F. H.

GROW BUCKWHEAT

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Buck-wreat should be grown in larger quan-tity this year in New York, Pennsyl-vania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, New England, and in the mountain sections of Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, and Ten-nessee, where it is known to be a safe crop. It should be sown on land where other crops have failed and on old meadow and pasture lands where the yields of hay and grass promise to be small. This is the advice given by the United States Department of Agriculure to farmers in all States named. Buckwheat should be sown on land repared as for corn. It is an excelent crop to sow where corn or some other crop has been planted but where a stand has not been secured. Best results are obtained where the land is plowed early and is well prepared, but good results can be obtained by sow ing immediately after plowing and harrowing

Buckwheat is valuable as a human food. It is also an excellent feed for poultry. The middlings remaining as a by-product after milling are, on account of their high protein content, a valuable feed for dairy rows. The pro-duction of buckwheat will help to pro-vide food in many districts this year duction of buckwheat will help to provide food in many districts this year for local consumption and thus help to avoid the danger of shortage due to possible lack of adequate transportation facilities. tion facilities.

To "volunteer" means to go into the service willingly.

"Rank and file" do not mean officers and enlisted men. "Rank" is a row of soldiers and "file" represents a man in the front rank with the man or men directly behind him. "Squad" is a part of a company.

A Captain commands a company, and he has under him a First Lieutenant and a Second Lieutenant. A Major commands a battalion, which is made up of four companies. A regiment is commanded by a Colonel, and it comprises three battalions, so that a regiment is made up of twelve com-grade of Brigadier General. Hereafter, under the proposed law, a Colonel will jump directly to Major General.

A General of the army corresponds to an Admiral in the navy. Lieutenant General ranks with Vice Admiral and a Major General with a Rear Admiral.
